anxious to see you; the Minister of War will issue an order to that effect. I regard you as my son.

General Murat will give him a brevet as sub-lieutenant in the Consular Guard, and will write him a letter.

25th. I intend to organize a Reserve army, of which the command will go to the First Consul.

February 7th. (Order.) Washington is dead. That great man fought against despotism. He established the liberty of his country. His memory will always be treasured by the French people, as it will by the free men of both continents, and especially by the French soldiers who, like him and the American soldiers, are fighting for equality and liberty.

The First Consul therefore orders that, for the space of ten days, a black crape shall be draped on the standards and guidons of the Republic.

13th. (To General H&iouville.) Inform Bourmont that he must surrender his guns within twenty-four hours of your summons, and 3000 muskets within three days. On his refusal put yourself at the head of your troops and don't take your boots off till you've destroyed him.

18th. At the palace of the Tuileries:

To be here is nothing, we've got to stay here!
